

Lysander residents,

I have been in contact with county officials and as of today, there are still no reported cases of COVID-19 reported in Onondaga County. Onondaga County officials are working daily to ensure the safety of our residents, but residents should strive to limit exposure to large crowds until this situation is under control. The County Executive gives daily briefings and today's briefing has the most up-to-date information available. Please visit ongov.net to watch the video.

While the town will remain open, we are asking residents to conduct business over the phone in order to protect all parties from unnecessary exposure. Individuals will only be allowed in the main lobby and meeting room of all town offices until further notice. If individuals feel it necessary to come to town offices or to attend any town function, we ask residents to practice social distancing. If you are sick, please stay at home.

We have always been a strong and caring community. Each of us should be looking out for our neighbors and offer assistance when possible. Check with seniors to see if help is needed or if relatives need assistance caring for young children. This coming week the county will have a help line for seniors to call for assistance. As information becomes available, I will continue to update you accordingly.

I assure you that public officials are working diligently to ensure that our residents stay safe. The county and town will continue to keep residents informed with the most current information available. Please check the Onondaga County and Lysander Town website frequently for any updates.
